

April 6, 2017

Dear Nursing Student,

I am writing to encourage you to consider applying to the Varsity Internship Program for your summer job. As you know by now, being a nurse requires much knowledge and skill. Along with that, there is a deep need for “life skills” such as leadership, professional communication, time management and coping with stress. The knowledge and nursing techniques you gain during your education will be much more effective if paired with the life skills you learn along the way. I believe that spending a summer as a Varsity Intern would be an intensive course in developing the life skills you will need as you begin your nursing practice.

It is also a great way to earn money and provide a service to others. I have known several former Varsity Interns and found each one to be engaging, confident and capable. They have done well in their careers and in life. Don't let this opportunity pass you by.

Warmly,

Deanna Britt, PhD, RN

Dean, Liberty University School of Nursing