Glenn,

I have a story to share with you and the rest of the Varsity team...

After recently joining the Internet Marketing team at eBay, I was reminded of a comment that my hiring manager (Dylan) made during my initial round of interviews. During the interview, one of my questions for Dylan was, "What was it that you saw on my resume that caused you to become interested in speaking with me and ultimately prompted you to invite me to come in to interview at eBay today?"

His response was, "I know that it should be because you have an MBA from Duke or because you have Internet-related work experience at Amazon and CitySearch, but in reality, the reason I was excited about talking to you was because of your door-to-door sales experience. I know what it takes to succeed in door-to-door sales, and those are the skills that we are looking for in the people that we hire."

Glenn, now that I am an active contributor to the eBay organization, I see more than ever the applications of what I learned through multiple years of Varsity recruiting, training, managing, and selling.

Thank you for your role in my personal and career development, and thank you to Varsity for the opportunity to develop memorable experiences and applicable skills.

Corey
